THE REPUTATION OF JURA WOOD COMES FROM THE EXCELLENCE OF ITS TERROIR

From 700 to 1300 m, the high-altitude Jura forest reveals conifers of great character.

AGAINST A BACKDROP OF TRADITION

ENTREPRENEURIAL MANAGEMENT

THE NEW PRODUCTION SITE of the Chauvin Sawmill now places the company among the French leaders in coniferous sawing. 48 qualified employees produce an annual sawing volume in constant progression, now exceeding 100,000 m³.

IDEALLY LOCATED IN THE HEART OF THE JURA MASSIF, Chauvin Sawmill develops its production by capitalizing on the assets related to this proximity :

- » A perfect knowledge of the Franche-Comté forest.
- » Short-circuit sourcing, guaranteeing homogeneous wood quality.
- » Controlled exploitation of a sustainably managed natural resource.

The ancestral fiber of wood trades reinforces industrial power in dynamism and efficiency.

" Our added value is in the quality and aesthetics of our products. We use canter-circulars to obtain great sawing precision and a beautiful surface condition. Automated stacking guarantees us a neat presentation of the packages ".

Benoît VINCENT, sales manager.

An aerial photograph of a dense forest, likely in the Jura mountains. The trees are lush green, and a narrow, dark path or streambed winds through the center of the forest. The lighting is bright, creating a vibrant green canopy.

ROOTS ALREADY ANCHORED IN THE FUTURE

The professional anchoring in the forests of the Jura mountains dates back to 1925. Four generations later, Chauvin Sawmill has become the French leader in the processing of high-altitude conifers. Industry has taken over from craftsmanship, and innovation has fortified itself with the sap of traditions. Of European dimension, the company distinguishes itself by the quality of its supply and by a constant commitment to diversify its offer.

"It is all of these differences that make our difference."
